

Camp Menagerie Media Policy

Photographers should consider participants' expectations of privacy when choosing which, if any, photographs they share publicly. All photographers must demonstrate due diligence informing identifiable subjects of publication of their images, and remove photographs from public view upon request from any pictured individual.

- Do not record or photograph participants without getting explicit consent.
- Identify and get explicit consent from people who are pictured before posting photos/videos of them on social media.
- Remove or delete pictures of participants if they request you do so.
- Remote recording devices are prohibited, including but not limited to drones.
- Do not take pictures or video in, or of, the Play Space, skinny dipping, or areas with "No Photography" signs.
- Unless you have prior written permission from Camp Menagerie leadership, you may only use photos, videos, or audio obtained at the event for personal use.
- If you are asked to stop filming or photographing, you must do so immediately. You have the responsibility not to interfere with the immediate experience of other participants.
- Failure to comply with these or any other media policies is grounds for eviction from the event and may bar entry in future years.
